Ed Cochran left Sunday to visit relatives in Oklahoma.

Character is a structure which you cannot get built by proxy.

John Carter is a grand juror in federal court at Jackson this week.

Mrs. A. D. Lay of Sellersville was in town Saturday calling on friends.

Elder S. L. Woodbridge of Sandy Hook had business in town yesterday.

Rev. Jim Kendall of Wilmore was in town Thursday calling on friends.

The unprecedented vote in the first primary was expected by political analysts to wane in the second primary, but contrary to the anticipated trend the high record vote was exceeded as close to half a million participated in the run off primary.

Chandler forged ahead to win by a comfortable margin.

The campaign is now history. Differences and antagonisms it engendered should be quickly forgotten.

Warring Democratic factions should close ranks. Reconciliations should be immediately effected, as we anticipate will be the aftermath.

A strong ticket has been nominated with Mr. Chandler. Both the Rhea and the Chandler group are represented on that ticket. This should be helpful in solidifying the Democratic party behind the ticket in the general campaign.

Every Democrat who realizes that it is for the best interests of Kentucky that its government remain in the hands of the party should be good enough sportsman to accept the verdict of the people and volunteer for service in the campaign which commences in November.

Let us cut short the post-mortems. Let us graciously accept the verdict of the Democratic primary regardless of whom we supported in the contest.

A militant and audacious young leader has been chosen to lead the fight in the final election. Let us enlist with enthusiasm under his banner. Victory is certain and we all should have a part in the triumph. Democratic Press Bureau.

CHANDLER THE CHAMPION

The phenomenal Democratic primary has terminated in the nomination of a ticket headed by A. B. Chandler as the candidate for governor. His is an amazing triumph, without parallel in Kentucky politics.

Happy Chandler waged a remarkable campaign, forced into the position of a contender early in the contest, and raced to the finish in the first primary well up toward the front in second place. His courageous campaign caught the popular fancy, drew widespread support.

Chandler's spectacular challenge in the first heat of the heated contest resulted in creation of a victory psychology which was intensified as the campaign progressed.

The unprecedented vote in the first primary was expected by political analysts to wane in the second primary, but contrary to the anticipated trend the high record vote was exceeded as close to half a million participated in the run off primary. National Youth Administration

On June 29, 1935, President Roosevelt, by executive order, established the National Youth Administration as a division of the Works Progress Administration, then authority of the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935. Fifty million dollars of WPA funds have been earmarked for the N.Y.A. program.

The major objectives of the National Youth Administration are:

1. To provide part time employment for youths of certified relief families at work relief projects suited to their abilities and needs.
2. To extend part time employment to needy college students, and such cash assistance to high school students in relief families.
3. To offer vocational information, training, and placement services to youths.

To encourage the extension of constructive educational and job qualifying leisure time activities.

Aid for High School Students. Cash assistance not exceeding $5 per month will be extended to a limited number of youths in relief families who are unable to attend high school for want of money for carfare, lunch and other small but necessary expenditures. This program in Kentucky will embrace aid for 5,423 high school students. Application should be made to the principal of the high school or the superintendent of the school district.

Work Relief. Work relief employment, especially adapted to young people, will be provided for young men and women between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five in relief families. The wages to be paid will be at regular work relief rates, but the hours of work will be limited. Preference will be given to projects favored by the young people themselves, particularly such projects as recreation and social centers for young people. These projects are to be constructed principally by youth labor under the guidance of skilled adult workers. It is planned to employ competent youths in connection with census to be taken throughout the United States.

Vocational Information, Job Training. Counseling, adjustment, and job placement services are to be developed in cooperation with the United States employment service and its two thousand offices, and with other public agencies.

PARENT-TEACHERS WILL MEET. The Parent-Teachers association will hold its first meeting of the new school year Monday night, Sept. 23, in the high school building, at 7 o'clock. Parents and teachers will come and make plans for a good school year.

The officers have met and elected the following chairman of committees: Finance, Mrs. J. B. Nickell; program, Mrs. J. L. Blair; hospitality, Mrs. T. H. Caskey; publicity, Mrs. F. S. Brown; membership, Mrs. Winifred L. Carpenter.

The executive committee met Tuesday afternoon and arranged for the meeting Monday. The president is quite enthusiastic over the program which she herself has arranged. She promises, however, to limit the program to those who are interested in the school.

The prize committee elected includes Mrs. O. B. Arnett, Oscar Peiffer, W. L. Carpenter. The following persons were appointed to visit the respective rooms, show a friendly interest, and arouse an interest in behalf of the P.T.A. and thus insure the attendance of both teachers and parents: Mrs. Ruth Gullett, Mrs. Nancy Turner; room, Mrs. J. C. Nickell, Mrs. Edna Burton's room; Mrs. O. B. Arnett, Mrs. Jean Wormsley's room; Mrs. F. S. Brown, Mrs. McKenzie's room; and Mrs. C. K. Stacy, C. C. May's room.

Do not forget Monday night at 7 in the high school building.

Ready for Fair. Harold Wells, coming to school here from Wells Hill, brought in a string of beans for his teacher to pass judgment on to see whether they would make a proper fair exhibit. The pods were of various lengths running up to 2 1/2 inches, and the teacher thought they might do.

Here from Middletown. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Murphy and son Harold Gene, of Middletown, O., spent the week end here visiting Mr. Murphy's parents and other relatives and friends.

Watermelon Party. The following persons spent a pleasant evening Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Benton at Coney: C. C. Whitaker, Wardell Walter, Edgar Craft, Mr. Myers, Frank Brown, Everett Henry, Emma Spurlock, Christine Adams, Margaret M. Brown, and Margaret Wells, all of West Liberty, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Stacy and Mr. and Mrs. Nickell of Stacy Park. They were served with ice cream and watermelon.

PIE SUPPER. There will be a pie supper at the Flatgap school Saturday night, Sept. 21. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. CARL WARD, Teacher.

DOLLARS CANNOT PAY THIS

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 16.—The meeting of Gov. Frank P. Lutz, at Michigan that the legislature will be called here today by Dr. Henry W. Bromley, general chairman of the Kentucky state "thrust" committee, which is conducting a state wide campaign to defeat the repeal amendment to be voted on in November.

"Governor Fitzgerald was never considered to be a... said Chandler Bromley, "but he showed that he realized the evils that have grown up under repeal when he said: 'We have permitted conditions to grow up that demand drastic treatment.'"

"Government does not serve its full purpose if it fails to guard against and with all its power the moral well-being of the people... prohibition days, we fought against the illicit market and distributor. Today, our battle is against the house."

"Anyone in Kentucky who has seen saloons spring up next door to school houses and across the street from churches, who has seen women and girls come staggering drunk out of hotels and barrooms who has seen the evils of drink floundering in the face of our young people, debauching our boys and dragging our men back to a hell from which they had escaped, was in agreement with the governor of Michigan when he says:

"The situation today with respect to the legalized liquor traffic is worse than it was in the darkest days of the saloon."

"Like many who misguidedly voted for national repeal, Governor Fitzgerald thought that the liquor traffic would be brought 'out in the open' where it could be regulated. But the disillusioned governor says, 'There in many places it has been allowed to withdraw into places that cannot stand light. In these places it has bred crime and immorality.'"

"The beer and liquor joint with its windows obscured, its lights dimmed, its booths to afford further privacy, with a dance floor as one adjunct and pool table facilities as another—is a distribution as vicious as any that has been devised to debauch the morals of a rising generation."

"We are wandering far away from the ways of our fathers when we assume that a dive-keeper may wren the morals of our youth and pay off his damage in dollars."

APPRECIATION. To the Democracy of Morgan county and all those who saw fit to support me in my race for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state:

I take this means of thanking you for the loyal support you gave me in the primary on August 3 whereby I carried the state over my nearest opponent by almost 31,000, and also for the support you gave me on September 7 whereby I carried the state of Kentucky by a majority of 19,527 over my opponent, which is a far greater majority than that received by any other candidate for state office.

I shall appreciate your continued loyal support in the general election in November.

Respectfully yours,
CHAS. D. ARNETT

MASONIC VISIT. Grand Master Heibert Henderson, Deputy Grand Master Hugh Moore, and Grand Senior Warden I. B. Ross of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, F. & A. M., will be in West Liberty on Monday, Sept. 23, for a short visit.

A special meeting of Highland lodge has been called to welcome these distinguished visitors at the hall at noon Monday. ROSCO HIRSH, Sec.

R. N. Lykins

R. N. Lykins, son of Newton Lykins, a 31-year-old veteran, formerly of this county, who for the past several years made his home in the far west, died of heart trouble in the Veterans' hospital, Washington, D. C., August 25. He was born 55 years ago. He was a member of the Christian church, and was read, when the sun first came from on high.

Mr. Lykins had been married twice. His first wife, daughter of D. H. Day, son of a farmer, died in childbirth several years ago, and was buried near her home in New Mexico. His second wife, an old woman, preceded him in death two years ago. To this union two sons were born, Edward, 23, living on the farm owned by his father, near Portsmouth, Ohio, and Walter, 21, living near New Lexington, Ohio. Lykins had a sister, who survives, Mrs. O. B. Jones, and Mrs. J. L. McGee, both of New Lexington, Ohio. Mrs. C. C. May, Lykins, Beas, Ohio, Mrs. C. C. May, and Mrs. James L. Lykins, Ohio, and Mack Egan, high school Ohio.

Mr. Lykins had been a very successful business man prior to his heart trouble. He was a man of sterling character, always kind and considerate to others, and was loved by all who knew him. News of his sudden death came as a shock to his many relatives and friends, all of whom were deeply grieved. He was laid to rest in the soldiers' cemetery, Washington, D. C., at 10:30, August 28, with full military honors, and just at 10:30 August 28, as we imagined, in that far eastern city we could hear the tolling of the funeral bell, thus McGee, teacher of the school at Mathews, together with his students, bowed in a few moments solemn prayer, and as they arose they sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee" in memory of his loving uncle, R. N. Lykins.

Dear uncle Ned, as I write these few lines I can almost feel your gentle spirit and hear your kind voice saying "Lydia, don't weep and tell your mother how sick I am; I'll be better when she comes home."

When mother came you had gone to that beautiful land, the far-away home of the soul, where no storms ever burn, on the glittering strand, and I was watching your crown in His hand.

Lovingly submitted by his niece,
LAVIA D. CECIL

DIES IN MISSOURI

H. O. Maxey of Butler, Missouri, a member of the state legislature, a Democrat, and one of the most ardent supporters of the progressive policies of the state administration, died at his home on September 11.

Mr. Maxey was a native of Morgan county and left here in 1874, boyhood days, receiving his education in the public schools of Bates county, Mo. He attended state teachers' college, and Hamilton school of law, Chicago.

Mr. Maxey never allowed his party affiliation to stand between him and voting for or against a bill on its merits. During ten years of service in the Missouri legislature at Jefferson City, he could no more support a bill which he thought was bad than he could oppose one which he thought was good. He continually fought the underhanded activities of the public utilities companies. He worked for public education and for the welfare of women and children and for the state's aged and dependent.

Missouri has lost a faithful public servant now its Kentucky lost a worthy son some sixty years ago.

Family Reunion

The children and grandchildren of W. H. Stacy staged a reunion and birthday party for Mr. Stacy's seventh birthday on Sunday at the Stacy home in the west end of town. The occasion was a very happy one, being the first time in twenty years when all the immediate family were together. The dinner on Sunday with the seventy candle cake as a center of attraction was a happy and satisfying one. Mr. Stacy carries his years lightly and apparently is good for many, many more happy retros of his natal day.

Rev. Henry to Lethair

Rev. Herbert Henry, who has been preaching at Frenchburg, has been sent by the M. E. conference to Lethair for the coming year. Mr. and Mrs. Henry have been residents of Lethair and Morgan county for many years and have more friends than fall to the common lot of men. They will form new friendships and add them to the ones here.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field

FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington—Black rust in the Northwest, particularly in the Dakotas and Minnesota, and to a lesser extent—due to less rain—in Montana, is going to upset a lot of AAA calculations on wheat this year. For example, all government figures so far are very misleading, in that they estimate bushels of wheat, but take no account of the fact that due to the peculiar type of ravaging black rust effects, the same number of bushels of wheat will produce less flour.

Conservative estimates in Minneapolis and St. Paul, for example, are that from 40 to 50 per cent of the wheat crop expected in the whole Northwest will be unmillable. That is, it would not, in the normal course of events, be ground into flour. This is complicated further by the processing taxes.

The processing tax is based on the bushel of wheat that goes into the flour mill. Now a bushel of wheat which has been affected by black rust will produce only a fraction of the flour that a normal bushel of wheat would. In ordinary times this would be carefully calculated, and would be reflected in a much lower price paid for that wheat by the miller. But the fact that the processing tax is based on the bushel of wheat, not on the barrel of flour, upsets normal calculations.

Black rust strikes the wheat on one side—always the southern side. If the weather is dry, it does not spread around the kernel. If the weather is damp, it does. It makes a ring all around, and as most of the nourishment comes up near the circumference of the kernel, instead of through the center, the food of the kernel is choked off. This means that in a bushel of rust-infected wheat, there is an unusually large percentage of bran, and an unusually small percentage which can be ground into white flour.

Canada Also Hit

The duty on wheat from Canada is 42 cents a bushel. Canada also suffered from black rust this year, but Canada has a tremendous carry-over—considerably more than 100,000,000 bushels, which is not affected by black rust. Moreover, the government of Canada has decided to liquidate this wheat, which it has been holding in much the same way that the United States government held cotton, and as the Brazilian government held coffee.

This hold-over Canadian wheat, experts say, can easily pay the 42 cents duty, and the processing tax, and still be a bargain for Minneapolis millers in contrast with about one half of the northwestern wheat. This is due to the complication of the processing tax, plus the fact that half or more of the northwestern wheat assays such a small proportion of flour.

Predictions by experts are that at least 50,000,000 bushels of this hold-over Canadian wheat will be bought by United States millers, and probably nearer 100,000,000 bushels.

The rust-infected wheat thus driven out will have to be sold as cattle feed. But there enters another complication. There is already in the Northwest a great plenty of cattle feed. All forage crops were good this year, due to the very moisture which hurt the wheat. Forage crops, due to their bulk as compared with their value, cannot be hauled economically for long distances. Which means that if they are to be consumed at all, they must be consumed in the northwestern states.

From all of which experts predict that there will be tremendous buying of young pigs for fattening, and young cattle, in the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Montana, this year, and that while the production of beef may not affect prices before 1937, the price of pork will be forced down by next summer, no matter what the AAA may do.

Atlantic-Gulf Canal

Aside entirely from the question of whether the construction of the Atlantic-Gulf canal across northern Florida will rule the fresh water supply of that portion of the state south of the proposed ditch down to Lake Okechobee, the proposition is really on all fours with the much talked about Passaniquaddy.

It has been considered for many years. Always it has been rejected, after study by engineers. Always the reason has been the same. It is entirely impractical as an engineering project—indeed it presents few real difficulties from that angle, if this canalization of Florida's fresh water supply is waded to one side. But is it economically sound? The answer has always been "No."

Careful study, even this time, produced a report to President Roosevelt that if the total volume of business which might be expected should materialize, still the proposition would not pay interest on its cost and operating expenses. There is no hair line about this. The experts had no doubt about it whatever.

But there is an even gloomier angle. Three-fourths of the present tonnage moving from Gulf ports to North Atlantic American ports, and across the Atlantic (tonnage for South Atlantic ports of course would not use it) consists at present of oil. No one is in a position to state how long this tonnage will continue so to move. Oil fields now shipping by way of the Gulf may continue shipping for many years.

On the other hand, their production may slump any time. Also it is always possible that pipe lines may be found more economical for moving the product.

So that no one knows at what moment three-fourths of the existing tonnage that this canal might expect may be cut off.

Can't Foretell Tonnage

Against this the contention is made in defense that no one can foretell what business may arise to provide plenty of tonnage for the canal. It is quite possible. Many railroads doing a large business today, and serving very real needs, were constructed to accommodate traffic which has long since disappeared—would never have been built if their builders, and the investors who provided the construction costs, had suspected that the traffic they were built to handle might evaporate.

The immediate pressure for the canal, of course, is to provide some useful work for idle men—something that will not be mere boondoggling. On the theory that this work may be useful—may even prove profitable for reasons not now realized—the work is justified by its defenders. And it is a real job. The canal will be 195 miles long. It involves moving almost twice as much dirt as was involved in digging the Panama canal—slides and all. Though on account of the difference in terrain, climate, etc., the expense will not be anything like as great.

Incidentally, traffic on the Panama canal is far greater than anyone at the time conceived it could be. So that there has been strong pressure economically, as well as for the more obvious reason of national defense, for a Nicaragua canal. Engineers, leaving out of consideration the question of keeping a canal open despite air raids and sabotage in war, would like to double the number of locks at Panama, thus doubling the amount of tonnage which could move through it.

About Politics

It is an old saying in politics that the man "out in front" in the race for the Presidential nomination of a big party—six months before the convention—is bound to be killed off. The theory is that all the other candidates are shooting at him. Also that the public is highly changeable, and for good reason.

There are exceptions to all rules, as evidenced in this case by the present incumbent of the White House, Franklin D. Roosevelt, was well out in front for the Democratic nomination for 18 months prior to the 1932 Democratic convention. He sprang into the lead when he was re-elected governor of New York, by a tremendous majority, in November, 1930. His boom defied all traditions by staying there, despite all sorts of ups and downs, right through the whole period. To use a racing term, his boom was never headed. There was never a day from November, 1930, until his nomination in June, 1932, when fair betting odds would not have favored him against any other candidate. Or for that matter, against any two other candidates.

Politicians of both parties are wondering if an exception will come this time in the Republican party. At present the two leaders, so far out in front that it seems hardly worth while to figure who is third and who is fourth, are Senator William E. Borah and Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

Almost any politician, familiar with national politics will tell his friends confidentially that if either of the two is nominated it will be Knox. This theory is also based on old traditions, which may easily be proved wrong. Stripped down to its essentials, the theory on which politicians clutch is two-fold. First, that he is too old. Second, that the "regulars" have never wanted Borah, and hence would not want him now.

As to Borah

That is one of the reasons the recent poll of Republican local leaders by Robert H. Lucas was so interesting. Apparently these local leaders thought Borah would make a very strong candidate in their communities, whether they personally would prefer another type or not.

As to his age, Borah is in marvellous condition considering his 70 years. Friends are fond of saying he has all the Mormon virtues. By which they mean he uses no tea, coffee, tobacco or alcohol. He is a spurring eater, and has kept up his horseback riding even in Washington. He insists on his beauty sleep every night, cares nothing about society, never subjects himself to any undue strains. For example, even when he was tremendously interested in filibusters, he never made the long, grueling, time-killing speeches for which some other senators are famous.

All his life he has been a lone wolf in politics. In the senate he has never been a cog in the machine. He would never be "regular."

The strength of Colonel Knox, as shown in various polls, is simply revolutionary from a political standpoint. One has to go back to Horace Greeley for a precedent, and even that is not a good one.

FARMERS' COLUMN

A.A.A. Amendments

The amendments revising the agricultural adjustment act meet questions of constitutionality and also strengthen and clarify the legislative foundation of the farm program in the light of experience gained during the past two years.

To insure the constitutionality of the act, the following provisions have been made:

First, the authority of the secretary of agriculture has been defined and limited to make it clear that congress is not delegating power to an administrative officer, but directing him to perform certain functions for which definite guides and standards have been set up.

Second, all previous and existing taxes, benefit payments, and contracts instituted prior to the adoption of the amendments are legalized and ratified by congress. The processing taxes in effect are directly levied by congress at their present rates, and specific rates are set for barley, rice, and flax. Provision is made for adjustment of tax rates in accordance with a specified formula.

Third, the operation of the act is rigidly limited to interstate commerce and the interstate commerce clause is redefined to bring it in line with language used by the supreme court in previous decisions. Provision is made for cooperation of federal and state governments.

Strengthening and clarifying provisions include the following:

Mortgage interest rates and land tax rates may be taken into consideration in arriving at parity price, or fair exchange value.

If the provisions allowing adjustment of the rate of processing taxes are held invalid, the specific rates of tax set by congress are to be in effect.

The ever normal granary plan, which contemplates the holding on farms of reserve supplies of certain non-perishable crops for use in periods of possible

Snapshots of KENTUCKY GEOLOGY

Dr. A. C. McFarlan

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Chapter XXIII
With the varied geology of different parts of the world a wide variation in the mineral resources of its different regions is to be expected, for the mineral resources of any one area are determined by the kinds of rock in that area and its geological history. Kentucky is a part of the Appalachian plateau, with the exception of the westernmost part, the Purchase region, which is typical coastal plain country. It is a region underlain by almost all the kinds of rocks, sandstones, and shales known to geologists. These rocks, known as the Purchase rocks, these rocks formerly in a molten state, are quite rare. As a result one naturally anticipates mineral deposits of these kinds commonly associated with sedimentary processes. On the other hand, these minerals commonly associated with igneous rocks, such as gold and silver minerals, and in origin dependent on some phase of volcanic activity, are hardly expected. This is true in spite of the legend of Swift's Silver Mine and the reported discovery of gold which recurs from time to time.

Kentucky has her share of economically important rocks and minerals. Some of these are outstanding as mineral resources, others are of moderate importance, others are now of no economic importance but are potential resources of the future. Other minerals of real value are present.

Shortage, and to protect both farmers and consumers from undue price fluctuations, is incorporated in the farm program.

Provision is made for building imports of competing farm products when they materially interfere with adjustment programs. An annual appropriation equal to 50 percent of the customs receipts, estimated to yield about $9,000,000, is made available for the purpose of subsidizing export-domestic production, diversion of surplus from normal channels of trade, and for financing adjustment payments.

The procedure for marketing agreements is clearly outlined in accordance with needs which have become evident. Since the original act became law potatoes have been made a basic commodity and provision is made for specific control methods for this crop.

FIRE DAMAGE SETTLED

Winchester, Ky., Aug. 30.—Reimbursement to the L. S. government for damages from fires occurring on the Cumberland national forest has been made by the Southern Railway company, according to information received here by T. L. Graham, forest supervisor.

According to the forest supervisor, a section crew of the railway engaged in burning brush and waste on its right of way near Greenwood, April 15, allowed the fire to reach dead leaves which had fallen into the forest. The workers endeavored to check the fire but were forced to call on the forest service camp for assistance. A crew was dispatched to the fire and had it under control 20 minutes after arrival. A small claim was made to the railway for cost of crew and damage to trees.

The following week a similar instance occurred near Parkers Lake. A forest service crew was dispatched to the fire. No damage was done to the trees. A small claim was made to cover cost of the crew.

LOGVILLE

Sept. 8.—Mrs. Farish Lee Hammond of Ashland spent a week recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Elam, and other relatives. She was accompanied home by her son Raymond, who had spent the summer here with his grandparents, and by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Martha Hammond, who expects to visit at Ashland and Garrison for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Elam and children Louise, Patty, and Jimmy and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Kennard and daughter Katherine spent the past week in West Frankfort, Ill., with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kelley. On their return home they spent a night with Mr. and Mrs. Hager Henry at Frankfort.

Wick Kennard of Cincinnati and Walter and Buster Kennard of Paintsville spent a week end recently with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kennard.

Mr. and Mrs. Hager Henry and son of Frankfort, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Fennik Kennard.

Mrs. Nettie Howland of Joplin spent one night last week with her sister Mrs. John Gambill, and family.

out in limited quantities and will contribute little to the income of the state. These mineral resources may be listed as follows:

- A. Outstanding resources: (1) coal, (2) petroleum and natural gas, (3) diamonds, (4) rock asphalt, (5) clay.
- B. Resources of moderate value: (1) limestone for many purposes, including building stone, cement, lime, road building, etc., (2) sandstone for building purposes, (3) sand for general construction, glass manufacture, and molding sand, (4) gravel, (5) barite (heavy spar), (6) mineral waters, (7) phosphate rock, (8) natural brines (these may be of value but have never been investigated).
- C. Potential resources: (1) oil shales.
- D. Minerals of minor importance: (1) Mexican onyx, (2) enclite, (3) iron ore, (4) lead and zinc minerals, (5) lithographic stone.

In total value the mineral resource industry contributes something less than one half that of agricultural products. At the present time the income of the state, both agricultural and mineral production, has been cut essentially in half from that of the more prosperous years. In 1929 the value of agricultural products was about $280,000,000, and income from mineral resource industries about $62,000,000.

People's Column

CHANDLER'S VICTORY

One of the hardest fought races ever waged in the state between two contenders for the nomination for governor closed Saturday, Sept. 7, in the run off primary, with a large majority for Chandler—the common man's friend.

In this run off primary the vote of Democracy has again spoken in Kentucky. The great common people of Kentucky recognized the importance of having a man like A. B. Chandler nominated in their judgment, and in the judgment of those who wish to play fair with the people of Kentucky. Mr. Chandler is the logical man to stand against Mr. Swope in November.

Not only were the Democrats interested in the outcome of the Republican party members of people became interested in Chandler. They well knew that Mr. Swope is not the logical man for governor. Mr. Swope is wealthy and aristocratic. The common people are tired of having the affairs of the government administered by those who confer upon certain classes special privileges.

The huge majority of votes cast for Chandler attests his popularity as the poor man's friend. And it is safe to predict that in November the common people, even in Republican ranks, will rally to the support of him who stands for the common people and this during the Laffoon administration when a powerful bi-partisan machine, whose every gesture was a violation of the principles of popular government ruled supreme.

Now that Mr. Chandler has fought his way thru to victory against the greatest odds, it is only reasonable to believe that he will sweep into office with a greater success in November being supported by the great common people of Kentucky from both parties on the strength of the fact that he is the common people's friend, as he has ever been proud to be.

4-H Club Meets

The West Liberty 4-H club held its regular community meeting Friday, Sept. 13, in the M. E. church. The president, Virginia Nickel, called the meeting to order and read the club minutes. In reporting the pledge, "My Old Kentucky Home" and the "Pleading Song" were sung by the club. The secretary, Helen Jean Cox, called the roll. Each member answered by telling the name of her project. Devotions were conducted by Neva Mae Cantrell. Betty Arnold read several jokes. Mr. Wrenthall gave an inspiring talk on 4-H club work, especially urging each of us to have something to exhibit in each of the fairs. A song leader, a cheer leader, and a reporter were elected. CARTER SCHOOL NEWS

Students of the eighth grade were sorry to lose two of their number the first of last week. Christine McGinnis and John Oakley, however, we are well pleased to know that they have landed safely in the freshman class of the East High school.

A new coat of paint has been added to the inside of our building. We find it more agreeable place in which to live as well as a more pleasant place in which to study. In fact, we are quite proud of our building, although much of the needed equipment is still lacking.

Edith Mae Long has been absent from the second grade for the past week on account of illness. We are anxious to have her return to her class.

We were happy to have as visitors Friday the Flat Woods school. The gathering was held in order that the two schools might become better acquainted. The day was well spent, and everyone seemed to enjoy it very much. We certainly appreciated the fine spirit of sportsmanship which was shown by each child in every undertaking. It is our sincerest desire that this will not be our last time to go together.

Several of the parents of the district visited the school on Friday. We urge them to come often.

Our attendance has been very good. Much interest is being shown by the parents of the district.

Dear Superintendent:

You are authorized to put to work Monday, Sept. 16, emergency teachers, who are to carry on educational projects under your supervision, who completed the two weeks' training program which ended Sept. 11. Please advise them to go to work in planning, visiting, and organizing the class projects they expect to carry on during the year. No emergency classes should be required to meet the first week. This time should be used to carefully plan, study, and organize the projects and classes should meet on the following Monday, Sept. 23. The same rules and regulations in effect during the past year will govern unless otherwise specified. The same record forms used last year will reach you later for distribution to your teachers. Class schedule, monthly report, and payroll vouchers signed by you and the teachers should be mailed to this office at the same time at the end of the school month. These vouchers will be made out for the last two weeks of the present school month, which will end Sept. 27.

Teachers of adult projects will receive 75 cents per hour for three hours per day, five days per week, or $15 per school month.

Please keep in mind that only those teachers who received training during the two weeks' period which ended Sept. 11 and who have been approved by the local relief worker for employment, will be put to work now. About the first of next month we hope to authorize you to put other eligible teachers to work.

Very sincerely yours,

HOMER W. NICHOLS, Director.

WEST LIBERTY SCHOOL NOTES

Lauren Mathis substituted for C. C. May, who was called to Jackson for two or three days.

The show directed by Prof. Eggers at the local theater Wednesday night yielded the school a net profit of $3.80.

Sylvan Donahew, a scholar, is ill this week and unable to be in school.

Prof. Winfred Carpenter and Coach Vaughan were in Canal City on Saturday and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Davis.

Ira Meadows of Index enrolled in the freshman class Monday.

Candy is being sold under the direction of Coach Vaughan for the purpose of using the proceeds to finance athletics, especially basketball. He has organized a basketball club and practice will begin very soon.

The following pupils were absent one day last week: Frances Stacy, Ruth Watkins, Katherine Watkins, Lorene Wingo, Robert Gross, Carl Jensen, Vlna Bowles, Marcella McKenzie, and Lester Gross.

The following new pupils were enrolled last week: L. L. Williams, William May, Ford Lykins, Irvin Lewis, and Garland Carpenter.

No one has been present or tardy for the week in Mrs. Burton's room.

The junior class organized recently by electing the following officers: president, Anna Clay Lacy; vice president, Helen Price; secretary, Elora Faulkner; treasurer, Ethel Elam; reporters, Virginia Nelson and Helen Cowley. Yellow and blue were chosen as the class colors. The class has 16 members enrolled.

Miss Mildred Nickell was in Jackson on Wednesday to have a medical examination at the Buck hospital.

Miss Joyce Henry, who was a member of the junior class, has started in at Wesley High school.

Assembly exercises cannot be held regularly because of the storage of building supplies in the auditorium. Plans are being made to have assembly in the church at least once a month.

A fine spirit of cooperation is manifested among the pupils and teachers. All classes move from one room to the other in quiet, orderly manner. Rarely ever can a piece of paper be found on the floor. Students are at work quietly and efficiently. All this is a result of a well organized school. Parents are invited to visit the school at any time.

It is noted that each parent will visit the room in which his or her child is located at least once during the term. Parents are also invited to talk over any difficulties their children may have with the teachers in an effort to adjust them satisfactorily. Most misunderstandings between parents and teachers would not exist if there were a full understanding between them. So often parents believe their children are doing good work and doing their part when if they would visit the school and see how their children are actually doing they would know that it was not always a fault of the teacher.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOL

In regard to the Malone school, I want to leave with the public a few thoughts.

We have had good teachers in the past, teachers who have done a good part by the children, but never before in the history of this school have we had teachers who have taken interest and proved it as have our present teachers. They have taken much interest in the up-building of our school rooms.

I also want to say to our county that we have a real superintendent who is taking particular interest in the small schools and in the poor children.

I must say for the children in Malone that we have splendid teachers. Ezra Williams and Mrs. Hazel Steele God knows they are doing their best to serve this district as best they know. They are teaching a real school and working hard to make us a better place to work in.

The teachers had a pie supper and collected $30.17 and every penny of it has gone for the school. They have bought paint and painted the inside of the house. They also bought window shades and curtains for all the windows. They bought playground equipment themselves for the children to play with. Our school room looks more like a school room now than ever before.

So again we want to thank our teachers and our superintendent, Mr. Haney, for what they have done for us.

"Much can be done just by patient trying."

WAR CREEK SCHOOL NEWS

The spirit of our community is still growing by leaps and bounds. We are still growing by leaps and bounds.

Miss Johnson's pupil, and I will forward to Friday, Sept. 20, when we go on our trip to Frankfort and Lexington. We are expecting to see some places of interest along the route. We are particularly interested in visiting the state capitals, both old and new, the state reformatories, and the place where the famous Jesse James Hanks is buried. If we have the time we will stop in Lexington at the state auditorium. This is a lot to accomplish in one day, but we think it can be done by leaving before daylight and returning in the night.

We are glad to welcome into our sixth grade class four of Miss Spencer's fourth grade pupils, Irene Elam, Nazario Elam, Irene Elam, and Ruth Elam, who were promoted last week.

Miss Spencer and her pupils are planning a picnic and horse-drawn race for Friday afternoon. The children are talking over with joy as the time draws near.

We sold the chickens we had during the first month of school and they added $108 to our treasury. We purchased a pig for $4 and are keeping and feeding it on the school ground. It is doing very well. Reports from pupils are that it is doing better than the first pig of the year. Senator Long Assassinated by Political Opponent

HUEY P. LONG, United States senator and political dictator of Louisiana, is dead, the victim of an assassin's bullet. As he passed through a corridor of the state house in Baton Rouge, where the legislature was passing more laws to solidify his control over the state, he was shot once through the body by Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., of Baton Rouge, one of the "Kingfish's" political opponents. The assassin was immediately shot to death by the senator's ever-present bodyguards.

Huey P. Long

Long was hurriedly taken to a hospital and eminent surgeons were summoned. They found the bullet had come through the base of the right lung and passed out of the back, puncturing the colon and causing internal hemorrhage. After the wound had been cleansed, two blood transfusions were given, the blood being supplied by Leont, Gov. James A. Noe. Mrs. Long and her daughter Rose were brought from New Orleans and sat at the senator's bedside.

The surgeons and physicians worked unceasingly to save Long, but his strength steadily waned and shortly after 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, about three hours after the shooting, he passed away.

The native of Doctor Weiss, an ex-convict and a violent specialist, apparently grew out of the high-handed political methods of Senator Long in Louisiana. The position of his father-in-law, District Judge R. H. Pavy of Opelousas parish, an anti-Long leader, is jeopardized by a law introduced in the present special session to gerrymander his district. The law would put the home of Judge Pavy in Landry parish.

In August, Senator Long told the senate that at a conference in the Hotel Du Sola in New Orleans last July 21 his foes had discussed a plot to kill him. He presented excerpts from what claimed was a record of a sound recording device revealing the plot.

Long's opponents laughed at this story, just as they always have ridiculed his practice of having an armed guard accompany him everywhere. Political leaders of all parties expressed their deep regret for the assassination of Senator Long. His devoted followers in Louisiana and elsewhere mourned his death. He had been one of the picturesque figures in America's political life, creating innumerable enemies but persistent in advocating his ideas which appeared fantastic to most citizens. A Democrat, he had broken with the administration and often bitterly attacked President Roosevelt and the New Dealers. It was the belief of many that he intended to become the Presidential nominee of a third party comprising his own "share the wealth" crowd and various other groups dissatisfied with the policies of the old parties.

Efforts of Statesmen to Prevent War in Africa

MUSSOLINI tacitly consented to the appointment of a committee of five nations by the League of Nations to handle the Ethiopian problem, and after protest agreed that Great Britain and France should be among the members of that body. The other members are Spain, Turkey and Poland. Senator Salvador de Madariaga of Spain is the chairman, and he and his associates at once began the task assigned them. Each country is represented by its chief delegate, being besides Madariaga, Eden of England, Laval of France, Mustu Arras of Turkey and Josef Beck of Poland.

The assembly of the league began its sessions in Geneva, bringing to that city many of Europe's foremost statesmen, and it was a certainty that the assembly would be definitely hostile to Italy and ready to consider imposing penalties on Italy the moment any overt act occurs. The Italians hoped to prolong the inquiry by the committee of five until after the adjournment of the assembly, and their opponents were building up a solid front, preparing for the application of sanctions against an aggressor as provided for in article 16 of the league covenant. Baron Aloisi told Captain Eden that the African campaign would not begin while the assembly was in session.

In two speeches in Rome Mussolini gave indication that he would not be diverted from his purpose to conquer Ethiopia. "Though in one he said 'the Italian people want peace provided it is accompanied by justice,' in the other he declared 'we shall march straight on.' The Ethiopian government announced that 'telegrams from the northern frontier show that the Italians are making important troop movements on the Ethiopian and Eritrean frontier, indicating an early offensive against Ethiopia."

Accepting the advice of his "brain trust," which includes Everett A. Colson of the United States, Emperor Haile Selassie instructed his representatives in Geneva to reject all solutions thus far offered by the powers for settling the quarrel with Italy. These are a tripartite mandate over Ethiopia, as suggested by France, with the League of Nations guaranteeing Ethiopia's independence and territorial integrity; France's proposal for an Italian protectorate similar to that of the British in Iraq, and an international police force similar to the one that occupied the Saar before its restoration to Germany.

Aloisi Presents Italy's Case Against Ethiopia

BARON PUMPHI ALOISI, cold and sarcastic, stood up before the League of Nations council in Geneva and presented Italy's case against Ethiopia, denouncing that empire as utterly unworthy to be classed with civilized countries. In addition to his speech, he laid before the council a long memorandum detailing the alleged conditions of slavery that still prevail in Ethiopia and the participation of its government in the slave trade. This memorandum was elaborately documented.

Addressing the council, Aloisi said in part:

"The Ethiopian government does nothing to make itself worthy of belonging to the community of civilized nations. Even today that country has to be represented by European advisers in order to make its voice heard in the League of Nations. 'The Italian government considers, in these circumstances, that a state such as Ethiopia cannot have either equality of right or equality of duties as compared with civilized states. To claim that members of the league are required to observe rules of the covenant in their relations with members who have always and constantly been outside those rules is contrary to all the principles of right and justice.'"

To the press correspondents the baron was even more explicit. "You have heard the Italian thesis," he said. "That is final. Italy has asked nothing, not even the withdrawal of Ethiopia from the league. From now on Italy will play a passive role here. We are not going to discuss anything with Ethiopia, but we will discuss Ethiopia with the league."

"It is up to the members of the league council to decide whether they want to expel Ethiopia or expel Italy."

Reactions to President's Letter Are Varied

REACTION of American business and financial men to President Roosevelt's latest public statement that his basic program has reached substantial completion and industry will have a breathing spell ran the gamut between mild hope and downright unhappiness. Those who permitted themselves to be quoted were generally extremely pessimistic in their expressions, but there was usually a vein of skepticism in their remarks. Wall Street brokers were gloomier by a spurt of trading at higher prices, but bankers were more than doubtful, and economists resisted that a balanced budget, which wasn't mentioned in the President's letter to Roy Howard, publisher, was a prime requisite.

Silas Strawn, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said: "Business men generally will say that the improvement in some lines of business has been in spite of, rather than because of, the activities of the administration."

Politicians regarded the letter as Mr. Roosevelt's opening of his campaign for reelection, and praised or decried it according to their party affiliations. Frank Knox of the Chicago Daily News, a potential candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, called it "just another promise" and set forth the many campaign promises which Mr. Roosevelt has failed to keep. Senator Black of Alabama said the statement was "a wonderfully clear explanation of his program, its original aims and its execution. It should be a call to those engaged in business to co-operate in further national progress."

Howard had written the President that many business men had become convinced that there could be no real recovery "until the fears of business have been allayed through the granting of a breathing spell to industry and a recess from further experimentation until the country can recover its losses."

In a long letter the President replied that the legislative program of his administration had reached substantial completion and "the breathing spell of which you speak is here—decidedly so."

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
Professor of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine, University of Illinois
College of Medicine

RABBIT FEVER

Rabbit fever, or tularemia, was discovered in the United States by Doctor McCoy of the United States public health service in 1911. He had been working in Tulare county in California in search of a germ causing the dreaded bubonic plague of the Orient, and in that connection had been systematically examining wild animals, rats, mice, squirrels, rabbits and other rodents. Financed thus he encountered a new germ, which eventually was named Bacillus Tularensis from Tulare county in which he first encountered it.

Within the last two decades tularemia has spread practically all over the United States, and it has been found also in Japan, but so far not in Europe. It is a new disease and doctors are watching it closely. With barely more than 20 years' history behind it, they can't know what variations it will show, as they do know about the older diseases.

Rabbit fever is the more common name for it, as it is primarily a disease of rabbits. The germ is transmitted from rabbit to rabbit by ticks.

Ticks feeding on infected rabbits get the germ and transmit it through their eggs to their young. A tick lays several thousand eggs, and each hatched tick, attaching itself to a rabbit, can give that rabbit the disease. Thus it can easily be seen that one sick rabbit can infect a whole countryside. In districts where rabbit fever is prevalent, it is common to see dead rabbits scattered over the ground. In addition to the rabbit, squirrels, wild rats, muskrats, opossums, coyotes and woodchucks can be affected with the fever. Quail and sage hens are now also falling victims. And not only the wood tick, rabbit tick and rabbit house, but also the blood-sucking deer fly can carry the infection.

In man rabbit fever is a secondary infection. He gets it through cutting or handling an infected rabbit carcass or other diseased animal. Or dogs, cats, hogs and other domestic animals may contaminate their mouths by eating dead infected animals and in that way transmit the disease to man. Or the mere handling of an infected tick may result in an infection.

The occurrence of the largest number of cases in man coincide with the open hunting season for hunting wild rabbits. Hunters, cooks and market men are most prone to get it. Laboratory workers, too, who are studying the blood and tissues of infected animals are apt to contract the disease. Sometimes the entire personnel in a laboratory will be victims. The infection usually enters the skin through an abrasion, but in a number of instances an abrasion was apparent. The evidence in these cases seems to be that mere contact of the skin with infected blood is sufficient to bring on the disease.

The chills and fever usually start six or seven days after an infection. There is a swelling and soreness at the spot where the germs entered the body. This sometimes forms an ulcer. The chills and fever last for about two months. Rabbit fever in man is more serious than undulant fever, which he gets from coming in contact with contagious material from infected cattle, hogs or goats.

Our best way of prevention of rabbit fever in man is to avoid contact with the carcasses of infected wild animals. Sickly or sluggish small game should not be shot, except as an act of mercy. A rabbit that sits still and allows you to shoot him at your leisure makes a dangerous carcass. Apparently healthy rabbits can carry the infection. To be on the safe side, always wear rubber gloves when dressing rabbits, and do not let the blood come in contact with any part of the skin. Infected rabbits, when well cooked, however, can be eaten without danger of contracting the disease. The danger comes in handling the raw meat.

Laboratory tests can determine whether a patient has contracted rabbit fever. The test is very similar to the one made for typhoid fever and for undulant fever.

Science does not know of any special method of treating tularemia. So far it does not seem that vaccines are of any value. One attack evidently confers immunity.

There are reports of sheep herds being infected by ticks. If this continues, it will mean many new ways of infecting man, through the handling of meat, hides and wool.

We do not know how to control the disease in wild animals. The tick transmission and the ability of the eggs to pass through its thousands of eggs to its offspring the same germ, make control almost impossible. Then, too, the germs may take a notion to find some other feeding ground than the small wild game in the woods that they thus far have selected. Germs have population problems the same as we have. They want to live and grow. If they find another feeding ground more suitable to their needs and taste, they will move. If that feeding ground should prove to be man, then rabbit fever in man could, doubtless, no longer be classed as a mild disease.

Old Fashioned Patchwork Quilts

Grandmother Clark's

Patchwork Quilt Designs

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK
From all indications quilt makers will be busy this winter making more quilts. Quilts are still very attractive for needle workers, and any suggestion on this work will be welcomed.

Patchwork quilt making is much easier today than during colonial days. Patches are more easily obtained. Diagrams and cutouts for patches and books of instruction are printed. All of these make the work easier and more quilts are being made.

Grandmother Clark's Book No. 24 on Patchwork Quilts contains 30 quilts with cutting diagram for patches, also several ways to assemble 12 and 18 inch quilt blocks.

This book contains information and diagrams for the quilts shown above.

and many other old designs. Send us 15 cents for this book No. 24 and receive it by mail.

The First Game Law

Two hundred years ago the Indians in Kentucky set aside game refuges for bears and created what may have been the first game law in America, says Vernon Bailey, retired naturalist of the Biological Survey. Bear fat, bear meat, and bear skins were the most prized returns of the hunt. Large areas were set aside as "beloved bear grounds" where only a limited number of animals could be killed each year, so that a permanent supply of those animals would be maintained. Mr. Bailey believes it might be well to day to follow the example of the Kentucky Indians, and establish "the loved bear grounds."

Death to Poisonous Black Widow Spider

One of the most poisonous insects which troubles mankind is the Black Widow spider. While this insect is fairly easily identified by the hour-glass marking on the under side, oftentimes people have been bitten by it before they have had time to discover its dangerous character. The best plan is to regard all spiders with suspicion, and to destroy them as soon as they are discovered.

A reliable insect spray, containing an ample quantity of Pyrethrins, a product derived from Pyrethrum flowers, is not only sure death to spiders, including the dread Black Widow, but kills flies, mosquitoes and other insect pests.

In making up a product of this kind, it is important that ample Pyrethrins be included to give a complete killing effect. Unless sufficient Pyrethrins are contained in the mixture insects may be stunned and rendered groggy for a time, but recover from the effects of the spray.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE MERRY LITTLE BREEZES HELP LIGHTFOOT

COULD you have seen the hunter with the terrible gun and Lightfoot the deer that morning on which the hunting season opened you might have thought that Lightfoot was hunting the hunter instead of the hunter hunting Lightfoot. You see, Lightfoot was behind the hunter so as to keep track of him. As long as he knew just where the hunter was he felt reasonably safe.

The Merry Little Breezes are the best friends that Lightfoot has. They always bring to him all the different scents they find as they wander through the Green Forest. And Lightfoot's delicate nose is so wonderful that he can take these scents, even though they are very faint, and tell just who or what has made them. So, though he makes the best possible use of his big ears and his beautiful eyes, he trusts more to his nose to warn him of danger.

Now the hunter with the terrible gun who was looking for Lightfoot knew all this, for he was wise in the ways of Lightfoot and of the other little people of the Green Forest. When he had entered the Green Forest that morning he had first of all made sure of the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were coming. Then he had begun to hunt in that direction, knowing that his scent would be carried behind him. It is more than likely that he would have reached the hiding place of Lightfoot the deer before the latter would have known that he was in the Green Forest had it not been for Sammy Jay's warning.

When he reached the tangle of fallen trees behind which Lightfoot had been hiding he worked around it slowly and with the greatest care, holding his terrible gun ready for use instantly should Lightfoot leap out. Presently he found Lightfoot's footprints in the soft ground and studying them he knew that Lightfoot had known of his coming.

"It was that confounded Jay," muttered the hunter. "Lightfoot heard him and knew what it meant. I know what he has done. He has eluded me so as to get behind me and get my scent. It is a clever trick, a very clever trick, but two can play at that game. I'll just try that little trick myself."

So the hunter in his turn made a wide circle back and presently there was none of the dreaded man-smell among the scents which the Merry Little Breezes brought to Lightfoot. Lightfoot had lost track of the hunter.

Answer: Well, I have to.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you tell me how it is that so many men are bald-headed?

Yours truly,

ANN VILL.

Answer: Find the man you traded with and ask him if he'd be kind enough to lend you the horse to eat the hay.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

There is a man living next door to me who is very lazy. In fact he lets his wife support him by taking in washing. Shouldn't he be ashamed to let his wife support him in that way?

Sincerely,

ALICE THICKKON.

Answer: I wouldn't blame the husband so much, if I were you. Maybe his wife is ignorant and can't earn a living any other way.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

SECRET OF CUSTARDS

CUSTARDS are such good desserts for children and the aged as well as for those who have weakened digestion. The secret of a good custard is in the cooking.

Steamed Cup Custard.

Beat two eggs lightly until the whites and yolks are well mixed, add three tablespoons of sugar, a bit of salt and a generous grating of nutmeg. When the sugar is well dissolved, add a pint of good milk, stir and mix well and pour into three custard cups. If large—four if small. Set in a pan of hot water and put on to steam. Do not let the water stand too deep in the pan so that in boiling it will roll into the cups. Watch carefully after the boiling begins; test with a clean knife thrust down the center of the custard. When the knife comes out clean remove the cups at once from the hot water and chill before serving. For variety in flavor—melt a few tablespoons of sugar in a smooth frying pan and pour this caramel into the bottom of the cups before adding the custard. When cooked they may be turned out and the caramel will form a brown sauce over the custard.

Meringue of Rice.

Put a cup of rice to cook in a pint of boiling water. When the water has evaporated add a pint of milk, a tablespoon of butter, the grated rind of a lemon and four well-beaten egg yolks. Enter a pudding dish and pour in the mixture, adding a little salt. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add a tablespoon of lemon juice and half a cup of sugar. Spread over the pudding and bake until brown.

Puffed Rice Pudding.

Heat until crisp three cups of puffed rice, stirring often to keep from scorching. Boil two cups of brown sugar with one-half cup of water, one tablespoon of vinegar, one tablespoon of butter, until the mixture makes a soft ball in cold water. Add a pinch of soda and salt and add the rice. Pour into pans well buttered and allow to harden.

Water Plants as Food

The pond lily has tuberos underground stems several feet in length which are rich in starch. In fact, the manna, largest of all North American mammals, is known to feed on these stems of the pond lily and other aquatic plants. The cattail and swamp grasses also have stems and roots of sufficient size to serve as food for an elephant. Here then was the food for this extinct race of curious beasts, which ranged across the deserts of Asia and North America.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for September 22

JAMES (A GREAT CHRISTIAN LEADER)

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17: 21, James 1: 1-12

GOLDEN TEXT—He that is the man that hath been approved, he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord promises them that love him.—James 1: 12

PRIMARY TEXT—James 1: 12

UNITED TEXT—James 1: 12

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TEXT—How to Keep Your Faith.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TEXT—The Message of James for Today

Three individuals by the name of James are mentioned in the New Testament. In all probability this James was the brother of the Lord and the writer of the Epistle which bears his name.

1. James Presiding at a Church Council (Acts 15: 1-21).

1. The controversy in the church at Antioch (vv. 1-5). A most important problem confronted the church, namely, the question of the inclusion of Gentiles into the church. Paul had been settled some years before when Peter received revelation and his house was the question now was, on what ground could they be received? Should Gentile believers be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salvation? In order to settle the matter Paul and Barnabas were sent to Jerusalem for the decision of the church.

2. The Deliberation of the Council (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter speaks (vv. 6-11). He argued that God had borne witness to the acceptance of the Gentiles by giving the Holy Spirit to them as also to the Jews. Since God had not put a difference, it would be folly for them to do so.

2. Paul and Barnabas rehearsed their experience (v. 12). They told how that God had set his seal of approval on the preaching of salvation by grace through faith.

3. The argument of James (vv. 14-21). He took the fact declared by Peter and showed how it harmonized with prophecy (Amos 9: 11-15). He showed that the rejection of the Gentiles was not in conflict, but in harmony with God's plan. He made clear God's plan as follows:

a. To take out from among the Gentiles a people for his name (v. 14). This is what is now being done by the calling out of the church.

b. After the church is completed Israel will be converted and restored to their land by the Lord himself at his return (vv. 16, 17).

c. This will be followed by the conversion of the world through the agency of converted Israel (v. 17; cf. Rom. 11: 15). Having shown that there was no conflict with the Scriptures rightly divided, he gave his judgment that the Gentiles should not be troubled with the things that are Jewish, but should be warned against the perils of heathenism, such as meat offered to idols, fornication, and blood.

4. The decision (vv. 22-26). The mother church unanimously endorsed James' recommendation. They sent a letter stating the decision of the conference. This decision was duly delivered to the church at Antioch and was received with rejoicing.

11. James Giving Counsel to Christians (James 1: 1-17).

1. Concerning trials (vv. 2-17). a. The Christian's attitude toward them (vv. 2-4). They were to meet them joyfully because of their beneficial effects. Trials reveal fidelity, and by their effects develop the grace of patience.

b. The Christian's supreme need in these trials (vv. 5-8). It is wisdom to meet them intelligently. He makes clear that the source of this wisdom is in God and that the means of gaining it is asking in faith, and the very liberality of God is the guarantee that the needed supply will be provided.

c. The rich and the poor are sharers alike in affliction (vv. 9-11). Frequently the poor man thinks that the rich are free from testings, whereas they are usually more severely tested.

d. The blessed reward of enduring the testing (v. 12). The one who faithfully endures the temptation shall be awarded the crown of life.

e. The source of temptation (vv. 13-15). Temptations spring out of human desire. They do not come from God. Sin is not necessarily the desire, but the gratifying of it improperly. When one is thus led away by his natural desires, sin is conceived which brings forth death. In such case, sin is the gratification of a right desire in a wrong way.

Life

Life is not so complex if we do not persist in making it so. We need faith; we need to be brave, to keep the corners of the mouth turned up and not down. And after all it is only a step at a time.—Italph Waldo Thoreau.

Affliction

Much of what a man tells you in the hour of affliction, in sudden anger, or in any outpouring of his heart, should be sacred. In his craving for sympathy he has spoken to you as to his own soul.

More Game Being Planted in Our National Forests

"Planting" game and "rehabilitating" animals is one of the missions of the forest service of the Department of Agriculture in restoring wildlife where it is under attack by our forest fires.

A number of heavier "game" have been planted in the last year in national forests of the Pacific Northwest and in the southern tier and other big game animals have been released in several forests. In one of the most recent plantings, 16 wild turkeys, 11 hares and 7 bobcats—were released in the Black Mountain game refuge on the Ozark National Forest, Arkansas. These male and eight female elk also were added to the refuge. The Arkansas national game authorities cooperated with the forest service by furnishing a way to start the elk in their new range.

With the technical assistance of the biological survey and the cooperation of state game agencies, the forest service is developing wildlife, as well as other resources of the national forests.

On some areas the problem is to control game animals where they are overabundant, to control the capacity of their range. Where wildlife has been depleted, the problem is one of restoration. The forest service aims to develop and maintain the wildlife resources of national forests in a sustained and profitable manner.
